Chapter 1 by Aηηιє ღeigh (GONE...)

It was a sunny afternoon; not one cloud in the sky.

The beach should have been crowded, the malls packed. But instead, Miami was completely deserted.

The buildings were ruins, a mixture of sand and dust covering everything for about twenty feet. Nothing has lived in this city, for over three hundred years. Earth for the matter of fact has been left for the heat to ravage, humans no longer present.

The heat had killed over six billion people, leaving few survivors.

The few left were hurried into over a million large space shuttles all over the world, and sent off into space with one objectif: reaching Jushid.

Jushid was the closest of a small handful of planets where humans could live and breathe, only five light years away.

The first shuttle landed on Jushid in what seemed to be 2788. With the new technology, it had only taken them a few weeks to travel what would normally take someone a million lifetimes.

It took about fifty years to get everything going again.

And after that, things were close. See more of Story Wars established, a president was elected, jobs were created.

It didn't take long to report. One of Jushid had a child.

George Mirkler, the new president, had made new laws.

As soon as your fifteenth birthday, you were to be wed and have children.

This 'ecosystem' worked for about sixty years.

Until Zephira, the president's grand daughter was born.

Chapter 2 by R

The president was retired, at that point, but he still stood in the public's eye, heralded as the hero who had lead them to such a successful new life. His granddaughter was just a child, at most a symbol of the economic and societal prosperity that the whole planet was faced with.

But after she was born, the planet began to fall apart.

You see, Zephira was not exactly a normal human. She appeared as if she was, but there was something about her, something that hadn't been seen since the Earth had been abandoned.

You see, she had powers.

Chapter 3 by Generation X

She could run faster than a cheetah. She could fight with as much agility as a cat. She was stronger than a gorilla.

But she looked like a six-year-old girl.

Scientists everywhere tried to figure out how she got those powers. Was it something to do with the food she was eating and the drinks she was drinking? or was it something to do with her genes? or maybe the environment?

The truth was, no one knew.

Except for the president's son. He knew why his daughter had powers.

He knew it was because his wife had been an alien.
